International team Dress Code

Shooting in practice or at the international event, you are required to wear a Scotland Shooting vest. Other than the jacket manufacturer's, the only badges allowed are your name above the breast pocket, a Scotland Team badge on the breast pocket, discipline flashes and year flashes. A blue or white Scotland Shooting Team polo shirt will be required as advised by the team manager, depending on how many days the international is shot over.

ISSF disciplines must comply with the ISSF clothing rules applying at the time.

Trousers, tailored shorts or a Kilt can be worn while shooting but in the case of the latter it must be worn with the correct accompanying accessories. A shirt or jersey with long or short sleeves, not sleeveless and a normal shooting hat. Hearing and eye protection MUST be worn.

For the Team photographs and prize giving banquet, dark blue blazer with Scotland blazer badge, grey trousers, dark socks, black shoes, white shirt with a Scotland Team member tie. Ladies may opt for a grey or tartan skirt or grey trousers, variances in tartans are acceptable. Ladies may wear a Scotland team member cravat.

New caps will receive a subsidy of £50 towards their first Scotland shooting jacket on application in writing to the Association Treasurer. No patterned camouflage wear or equipment of any sort is permitted. The SCTA has a range of clothing available to order from a link on the website.
